Fuji release Plan - Application services and export services

- With the Fuji release, the application services should be 100% functional replacements for export services (client and distro)
- An earlier decision not to support cloud IoT platforms directly was revisited. The feeling was that some examples at least needed to be provided to make connecting to cloud providers easier.
- Application services will now provide example services that get data to “the big 3” of :
  - Amazon IoT,
  - Azure IoT and
  - Google IoT Core
  - starting with Amazon and Azure for the Fuji release
- Adding support for Google or Chinese cloud providers (Tencent, Alibaba, etc.) is a stretch goal
- On the next App WG meeting IBM will present open horizon. <https://github.com/open-horizon/>

  - Added core-command test cases.
- Issue #1308 caused all of scheduler test cases failed on blackbox-testing
- Edinburgh objectives
  - Better visualization/dashboarding (Allure) of test results (complete)
  - Automated capture of resource metrics to monitor performance (job scheduled to run on main LF jenkins server every Saturday at 4am UTC) - work should be completed this week
  - Security test automation - tests running on x86, scripts updated to run new Kong docker image for ARM - work should be completed this week
